

MAIN CHARACTERS

Austin

His head is so far in the clouds that he needs to watch out for the ISS. He is smart, but prone to going off on tangents or pulling out a breathless non-sequitur. Sometimes he wonders if it was the right choice to go into Engineering. Respectful, and pretty friendly.

Bob

Some people live and breathe their work, and Bob is one of them. If there is one person in the cast who has the possibility to be the next Bill Gates, Bob is it and he won't let anyone forget it. He is completely sure that Engineering is his life, and doesn't think art contributes to society.

Claire

Unlike her two friends, Claire is actually pretty well balanced. Smart and with a dry wit (much to Bob's annoyance), she doesn't want to be thought of as "Just another engineer". She works hard to prove she is just as talented as everyone else.

Smith

Smith is a man of wealth and taste. A smooth talker, with a heart of what is assumed to be flesh, he has the lowkey arrogance of an expert locksmith looking down at a shit locksmith. He has a habit of showing up in the strangest locations and rarely gives you a straight answer.

MINOR CHARACTERS

Note: most of these characters are gender fluid. If you see a roll that catches your eye, there is nothing stopping us from changing Mario to Maria or Lisa to Leonardo.

Lisa Monet

Like Bob, but replace Engineering with Art. She won't rest until she makes DaVinci look like a toddler's first experience with crayons.

Mario

An old friend of Austin, Mario is stuck in a dead end job that is slowly sucking his life away. He tries to put on a happy face, but he isn't fooling anyone.

Grace

One of the few engineers left. Maybe. She isn't quite clear on what her responsibilities are, but they must be important or else she wouldn't be working, right?

Trevor

He lifts. Like, a lot. An absurd amount of lifting, in fact. It's his passion. Where does he even get all those weights?

The Guru

The charismatic founder of the Next Big Startup. He can sell holy water to a demon without actually knowing what holy water is.

Feelicity

She's just so excited to help you build your portfolio! But wow, you really should have been able to do this on your own.

Columbus

He may have travelled the world, but he still can't leave the memory of his failed relationship behind. Bit of a creep.

Nega-Engineers

These three engineers have mastered the sacred art of balancing social life, academics, and exercise. Bro, they speak strange, yo.

Assorted Minor Characters

These characters only have a few lines (~10) each. You won't audition for them, but if you get cast for one of the other supporting characters you will likely take on a few of these rolls as well.

